NOVEMBER MEETING

On the day before Election Day, our November meeting was lively, full of new ideas, discussion of priorities and anticipation of the '93 season. We did a quick review of the proposed calendar for the new year. Special programs and workshop dates for the winter months have not been assigned. There is more suggestion of hiring a full or part-time Director. Meanwhile, a program committee is an absolute need. YOU can help....call Norm Legassic at 434-8436 for a meeting in January.

We have purchased a bookcase as a modest beginning to better display of our library. John Knowlton and Norm have been evaluating the condition of some of our older volumes. With the Shaw Fund, we hope to have new shelves and be ready for expansion of our art book collection sometime in the new year.

Bill Kusche reported on the progress of his Christmas show plans and Ann Moran asked that each and every artist be reminded of his/her commitment to provide sandwiches, cookies, etc. for the holiday punch table on Saturday the 21st. (This is an old-fashioned, long standing and very warm tradition in the Lyme Art Association.)

A work committee was organized for Monday morning on the 7th of December to winterize the gallery and general clean-up. It has been noted that walls, woodwork and floors are targeted for refinishing in the coming year.

ARTISTS AT WORK

At the Waterford Public Library, RACHEL E. ARMSTRONG has a new exhibition which opened on Sunday, November 1st and will continue to Monday, November 30th. The library at 15 Rope Ferry Road in Waterford is open weekdays 9 to 9 except Friday, 9 to 5:30. The weekend hours are 1 to 5PM.....through the month of November, ANNE BINGHAM WRIGHT is showing watercolors at the Easter Seal Goodwill Industries Rehabilitation Center at 95 Hamilton Street in New Haven and at European Auto Ltd. on Colton Road in East Lyme.....with nationwide coverage AL VETROMILE is currently showing western paintings in San Antonio and Dallas, Texas and Boise, Idaho

WANTED.....BOOKS

When we have our shelving in place, we will be ready to receive offerings of good art books. Members can do a lot of cleaning out of their own libraries for the benefit of others.

AND.....A MEMBERS' CORNER

Along with the development of a usable library facility of our growing collection of art books, we have been considering the creation of a Members' Corner.....with comfortable seating and other amenities. We have received the offer of a SOFA. Now, for some suitable CHAIRS, AREA RUG, small TABLE..... and even a PIANO.....Call Bill Babcock 445-6206 or Ann Moran 434-9689 if you have something that might be appropriate.

Donors are reminded that gifts to non-profit organizations allow tax credits.

ANYONE INTERESTED???????

OPUS 71 Galleries in New Hampshire has two special shows annually -- in April and October -- for working artists in New Hampshire and the New England region. All work for these exhibitions is executed specifically for each show which is based around an idea proposed by the gallery. Artists are chosen on the basis of ability and their individual works' potential contribution to each presentation. The $1000. Hollis Arts Society Award for Excellence is given to one artist in each show.

Write Opus 71 Galleries at 71 Depot Road in Hollis, NH 03049 or call 603-465-3434 for information.

If anyone has art materials or related items to swap, give away, etc. that they would like to advertize in the newsletter, please call me at 434-1291. Editor

Art and the Plains Indian

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25th - 7:15pm

ALFRED VETROMILE will present a lecture on ART AND THE PLAINS INDIAN during the Holiday Show on Wednesday, November 25th, 7:15 to 8:30pm. Everyone Welcome!

Vetromile, with over a dozen years in the study and painting of American Indians, will entertain us with stories of the events that occurred in the West when trappers and pioneer artists entered the Indian Territories in the early 1800s.

Vetromile's work is well represented in galleries in the west and southwest.....and the LYME ART ASSOCIATION. In May, he will be showing recent paintings at the Mt. Kearsarge Indian Museum in Warner, New Hampshire.
